

2003 FWSA Safety Person of the Year

ELAINE COBOS

Elaine Cobos from Phoenix, AZ is the 2003 FWSA Safety Person of the Year.

To Elaine, promoting safety means acting as a club safety representative, publishing articles on safety in newsletters, speaking on safety issues at meetings or on trips, and raising the awareness of members toward the need for everyone to practice safety 100% of the time

Elaine is a business project manager with Motorola, Inc. and is president of the corporate-sponsored Motorola Ski Club, based in the Phoenix area. She has a BS in History from Cal State University – Hayward and her master's certificate in Project Management from George Washington University. She holds certifications as an Information Systems Auditor (CISA) and Project Management Professional (PMP).

She has raced for Motorola Ski Club and won the overall President's Race during the Jaeger Cup Challenge, the Arizona Ski Council race event during the annual ASC early season trip to Telluride, CO.

In her spare time, she is also president of the Arizona Ski Council. When she is not skiing, Elaine enjoys hiking, camping, bicycling, motorcycles, theatre, jazz and traveling. Elaine has been chosen as Arizona Council Woman of the Year in 2002 and 2003. At the 2003 FWSA Convention Elaine was chosen FWSA Councils' Woman of the Year.
